PUBLIC SAFETY ALERT

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

DEA Reports Widespread Threat of Fentanyl Mixed with Xylazine

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration is warning the American public of a sharp increase in the trafficking of fentanyl mixed with xylazine. Xylazine, also known as “Tranq,” is a powerful sedative that the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has approved for veterinary use.

“Xylazine is making the deadliest drug threat our country has every faced, fentanyl, even deadlier,” said Administrator Milgram. “DEA has seized xylazine and fentanyl mixtures in 48 of 50 States. The DEA Laboratory System is reporting that in 2022 approximately 23% of fentanyl powder and 7% of fentanyl pills seized by the DEA contained xylazine.”

Xylazine and fentanyl drug mixtures place users at a higher risk of suffering a fatal drug poisoning. Because xylazine is not an opioid, naloxone (Narcan) does not reverse its effects. Still, experts always recommend administering naloxone if someone might be suffering a drug poisoning. People who inject drug mixtures containing xylazine also can develop severe wounds, including necrosis—the rotting of human tissue—that may lead to amputation.

Problem Statement

Fentanyl, a synthetic opioid, is being laced in a wide variety of drugs that are easily accessible to youth. The use of dealing online has made the ability to buy counterfeit drugs almost effortless. Fentanyl is extremely lethal in small doses, easy to lace and can be disguised as candy. At schools, social pressures, a lack of education, a lack of narcan and help for those who are using drugs has also aided in the increase of overdoses and deaths in recent years.

SMART Goals

- #1 (Student): 75% of TUHSD high school students will have knowledge of the lethality & accessibility of fentanyl by 75% by May 22, 2024.
- #2 (Community): 20% overall response rate from fentanyl awareness surveys and activities among families in the TUHSD by May 22, 2024.

No Second Chance

- Fentanyl is a synthetic opioid that is up to 50X stronger than heroin and 100X stronger than Morphine.
- DEA lab testing reveals 60% of counterfeit pills can contain a potentially lethal dose of fentanyl.
- Counterfeit pills often mimic pharmaceutical drugs such as Percocet and Xanax. Fentanyl can also be used as a cutting agent in other drugs such as Molly, Methamphetamine, and infused in nasal sprays and Vapes.
- There are two types of fentanyl: pharmaceutical (legitimate use by medical professionals) and illicitly manufactured fentanyl, often made in foreign labs with no quality control and it is distributed through illegal drug markets. It is highly addictive.
- The only safe medications are those prescribed by a trusted medical professional and dispensed by a licensed pharmacist.
